Calvin's supply chains

Calvin invests and manages utility infrastructure assets.

As an expanding business with a number of suppliers, Calvin recognises that there is a risk (however small) for slavery or human trafficking to occur in its supply chains. Calvin takes a zero-tolerance approach to slavery and human trafficking and adheres to the strictest behaviors and standards and expects the same of its suppliers. Calvin therefore seeks to partner with suppliers that ensure a fair and ethical workplace, where workers are treated with dignity and respect and the highest standards of human rights are upheld.

Calvin's policies

As highlighted in Calvin's Procurement and Corporate Responsibility Code for Suppliers, it is a fundamental requirement of Calvin to conduct its business with integrity and in accordance with the highest standards of ethics, equity and fair dealing.

Calvin is committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking in its supply chains or in any part of its business.

Calvin's Responsible Procurement Policy reflects its commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all its business relationships and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure slavery and human trafficking is not taking place anywhere in its supply chains.

Due diligence processes for slavery and human trafficking

Calvin has taken appropriate steps to help ensure that slavery or human trafficking has not taken place in its supply chains and in any part of its own business.

Internally, Calvin has robust recruitment processes which include undertaking document checks on candidates prior to employment to evidence that they are permitted to work in the UK, performing appropriate reference checks and ensuring that staff are paid directly into a suitable personal bank account. In relation to its supply chains, Calvin has reviewed its contractual arrangements with current and prospective suppliers to ensure they comply with the Act. This involves placing obligations upon suppliers to conduct slavery risk assessments within their own supply chains, implement appropriate controls to prevent modern slavery, and notify Calvin immediately if any supplier becomes aware of any modern slavery within their supply chains.

As part of Calvin's initiative to identify and mitigate risk, it has: 1) reviewed and revised its procurement processes; 2) reviewed its due diligence processes; 3) acknowledged the need to map its supply chains to identify the parts of the supply chains where the risks are most severe or most likely to occur; and 4) recognised that processes should be adopted to identify and assess potential risk areas in our supply chains. This involves consideration of the geographical location where its supply chain operates as well as assessing whether specific parts of the business or particular relationships or transactions are vulnerable to modern slavery and human trafficking.

Supplier adherence to Calvin's values

Calvin engages with its suppliers to seek assurance about their anti-slavery and human trafficking policies and whether they are taking steps to prevent slavery and human trafficking in their respective businesses and supply chains. Calvin will not support or engage suppliers where it is aware of slavery or human trafficking in such suppliers' business or supply chains or where a supplier has failed to give Calvin the requisite assurances.

Training

To ensure a high level of understanding of the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in its supply chains and business, it is mindful that appropriate training should be introduced and delivered to all of its staff. Calvin has rolled out an online training program on modern slavery, developed by Kallidus, to increase awareness amongst staff.

Calvin's effectiveness in combating slavery and human trafficking

Calvin's analysis suggests that the risk for Calvin of involvement in modern slavery and human trafficking is low on the basis that it conducts extensive due diligence processes on its supply chains and its supply chains are established suppliers that have in place significant due diligence processes. When dealing with suppliers operating in jurisdictions outside the United Kingdom, Calvin implements a full assessment on their compliance with, amongst others, the Act and, if appropriate, Calvin requires a site audit of those suppliers to ensure their compliance with Calvin's standards.

As part of Calvin's approach to combat slavery and human tracking typically a number of physical site visits to suppliers (including at international locations) are undertaken in each financial year. However, due to COVID 19 such physical visits have not been possible in 2020 and therefore Calvin has adapted its approach. Virtual audits of selected suppliers are being undertaken to ensure compliance with the Act in accordance with Calvin's standards.

Further steps

Calvin is committed to continual improvement and will take active measures to combat modern slavery and human trafficking in its business and supply chains.

This statement is made under section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes Calvin's Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement for the financial year ending 31 December 2020.

This statement has been approved by Calvin Capital UK Limited board of directors and will be reviewed annually.
